You may not know if you even have a case, but that's OK. There are many reasons why people involved in car accidents call us. Check out these top reasons to hire experienced auto accident attorneys in Bakersfield.

Serious Injuries

Serious injuries are ones that keep you out of work for an extended period of time, require lengthy hospital stays and rehab appointments, and result in temporary or permanent loss in function such as to arms, legs, etc. Traumatic brain injury, spinal cord injury...yes these are all valid reasons for needing to hire an auto accident attorney. However, serious injuries to a lesser extent, such as broken bones and severe whiplash, may also constitute a case. Plus, there are plenty of injuries that don't seem so bad in the beginning but worsen over time. That's why you should never self-diagnose and assume your injuries aren't worthy of compensation. You don't have to end up paralyzed to be compensated.

Costly Damages

The other side of the coin is the damage done to your property or automobile. Those extensive damages come with a high price tag. Who will pay for those damages? The insurance company will only give you so much. Make sure you're covered.

Large Medical Bills

Injuries bring medical bills. Lots of them. Even if you have insurance, you will still likely have to pay out of pocket for services that are not covered. For serious, long-lasting injuries, those bills can pile up quickly and leave you in a financial bind of the worst kind.

Hospital Visits

If the car accident was enough to send you to the hospital, you should at least consult with a lawyer. Hospital stays are not cheap, with an average five-night stay in a standard room totaling $10,000. Just one night in the ICU costs $10,000. You shouldn't be left holding the bag just because someone else was texting and driving.

Complicated Cases

Not all car accidents are cut and dried. Sometimes they involve complex components, conflicting witness statements, lengthy accident scene recreations, extensive research and exhaustive police work. You'll need a lawyer to handle the sheer amount of paperwork and research involved in bringing the case to a close.

Death of a Loved One

Wrongful death as the result of a motor vehicle accident that was someone else's fault is grounds for a lawsuit. No one can bring your spouse, child, mother or father back, but someone should be held accountable for your loss. We will make sure they pay for the life they took away.
