WHY

You Need to Hire a
Car Accident Attorneys

Knowing when to hire a car accident attorney is not always an easy decision.

It must be approached carefully yet in a timely manner. Your injuries or those of your loved one will need to be tended to, but your financial future must also be nourished in the face of uncertainty.

The year 2016 saw an increase in traffic crash deaths of 43 percent over 2015, according to the LA Times, with thousands more suffering injuries ranging from mild to severe. Many factors can contribute to an accident, whether that's poor driving skills, distracted driving, inattention at the wheel, bad weather or less-than-ideal road conditions.

If you have been injured in a car accident, you may contemplate handling the matter on your own so the insurance companies can duke it out. Sounds like it's avoiding a hassle on the surface but in reality it's causing you even more problems.

Sure, minor injuries sustained in a fender bender don't always call for a lawsuit. But when the injuries are more extensive and long-lasting, as a result of a major car crash where fault and blame are being thrown around, hiring experienced car accident attorneys in Riverside County is a wise course of action.

Here are some situations that dictate you retain the services of a car accident lawyer to work in your best interests.

1 When Liability is in Dispute

Questioning your liability: it's just what insurance companies do. It's usually a shot in the dark on their part, but accepting their conclusions without a fight will end your visions of a generous settlement. What the insurance company is really trying to do is stall. Don't let them blame you and don't let these stall tactics get in the way of justice.

It's much too easy to get tripped up on technicalities or falter under the pressure of the insurance companies.

2 When You Are New to This

Well, most people are new to this! It's not every day that you get into a car accident that leaves you with debilitating injuries. The days and weeks surrounding an accident, especially a large one with many parties, is a complicated web of he-said, she-said. To the uninitiated, this can overwhelm and frustrate extremely quickly and easily. There are certain steps that must be followed in the right order for things to happen expeditiously. When those steps are not followed and documents are not filed by stated deadlines, your case can be irreparably damaged.

Don't know the first thing about filing a claim, much less while nursing your injuries? Then this is a good reason to seek out a car accident lawyer to help you. It's much too easy to get tripped up on technicalities or falter under the pressure of the insurance companies. You could miss out on the compensation you deserve, or worse, your claim could even be rejected. With so many barriers to getting financial compensation in a car accident case, you need a lawyer behind you who has been around the block a few times.

3 When You Have Long-Term or Permanent Disability Injuries

Insurance companies judge the depth of your injury on these three factors:

- The type of injury
- Projected timeline of recovery
- Current and estimated future medical bills

That first offer is almost never enough, so respect your injuries and hold out for what you truly deserve.

If you're going this alone, and are facing serious injuries that could last for years, you are now tasked with trying to prove your injuries are grave enough to pose long-term or permanent disability. This quickly becomes a battle of wits. Who will prevail? Your car accident lawyer, on the other hand, relies on a strong network of medical and other professionals who work together to prove your disability beyond a doubt.

4 When You Aren't Offered a Fair Amount

If you're like most people, you may take the insurance companies at their word and accept the first settlement they put out there. This is very often a big mistake. The insurance companies assume car accident victims will shy away from the complicated process of dealing with red tape and back down. We understand – you don't want to deal with more conflict after what you've already been through. But when extensive injuries and time out of work are involved, you have to look out for #1 and retain the services of a car accident lawyer who can intervene on your behalf. That first offer is almost never enough, so respect your injuries and hold out for what you truly deserve.
